Accountability For Children's Rights
2018-09-03 11:20 Accountability Children's Rights
The Human Rights Unit within the Programme Division of UNICEF commissioned this working paper on accountability for children's rights, and convened a two-day workshop in March 2014, bringing together social accountability researchers, practitioners and child rights experts to discuss how civil society engagement can help accelerate results for children by holding governments accountable. This paper focuses on social accountability and its potential to achieve results and equity for children, as experiences are emerging that show its benefits to governance, citizenship and development outcomes. It also outlines how social accountability can help engage children and adolescents meaningfully in matters that affect them and their communities.

Child Friendly Cities - webpage
2018-02-15 15:04 Child Friendly Cities
Child Friendly Cities A child friendly city is the embodiment of the Convention on the Rights of the Child at the local level, which in practice means that children's rights are reflected in policies, laws, and services.
